BLACK HAND MEN ATTACK WOMAN IN BROAD DAYLIGHT

Bronx Storekeeper with Her Pistol Fires to Defend Herself, but Is Beaten Into Insensibility and Robbed.

Not until to-day did the Police Department get word of the most daring daylight job that any of New York's innumerable Black Hand societies have yet attempted. Usually the Italian blackmailers prefer to work under cover of darkness.

But yesterday afternoon a group of these tribute collectors boldly invaded the little candy and notion store of Mrs. Cora Smith, at No. 2978 Park avenue, in the Bronx, swapped pistol shots with her, beat her Into unconsciousness, robbed her till and then got fifteen hours' start on

The mightlest protection for the Black ran to the back room and got a big Stand is its own dreaded name. It now automatic pistol belonging to her husdevelops that for weeks the lone little band. She knew how to use it. woman in the candy shop had been tor- | She meant to go for the police, woman in the candy shop had been tormented with threatening letters. Her house had been gitacked at night and the thugs had even dared to pay her suidskay calls to mean to go for the police, but when she got to the door with the gun hidden in the folds of her skirt she saw her mysterious caller standing on watch at the corner. She went back in fifteen minutes Signor Gold Teeth loated slowly by. With him were a tail, roughly dressed Italian and a little dapper chap.

Although her name doesn't show it. James Malloy, driver of a cify wagon, who lives upstairs over Mrs. Smith's store, happened to be looking out of his front window. He saw the loitering trio stroil down the street and meet three other men, who immediately epread out in various directions. They were picketing the block, but, of course, Malloy, who had the companion stepped inside the store. They had timed their arrival so that they appeared out as two freight trains rumbled by a few yards away, filling the air with deafening clatter.

tomary wares of the Italian merchant.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Smith began receiving letters in scrawled English signed with daggers and skulls, and struck her between the pior of the railroad bridge two blocks below her house. Although she made up her mind not to pay, the mere mention of the Black Hand had so great a terror for her that she feared to notify the polica.

Chance to Fire Only Once.

No word was spoken. The plucky woman leveled her oig pistol and fired once. The bullet went wild. The gold-toothed man crouched, leaped forward and struck her between the eyes. He beat her in the face with his right fist, while with his left he wrestled for the possession of the pistol. While he was getting it away from her there was trying to shoot her.

Two Dollars in the Till.

Shot at Before.

Last Tuesday night, so she now admits, men came to her store and tried to force an entrance. Finding the shutters tightly barred they fired five pistol shots through a convenient chink into the store. The bullets whistled ever the woman's head as she cowered in hed. She thinks this was merely by way of a reminder that the Black Tank meant business.

Two Dollars in the Till.

The taller man ran to the till. It contained only two dollars in change. As he swept up the coins he yelled something to his leader, and the small man, drawing off, brought down the butt of the revolver upon the head of the screaming woman until she dropped, stunned.

The last thing she remembered was the big man closing in on her and tearing a diamond brooch from her throat so roughly that the pin-gashed lier flesh.

She thinks this was well as the Black of the plant business.

of the Supreme Court for the appointment of temporary receivers for the detropolitan Street Railway and New fork City Railway Companies.

Samuel Untermyer appeared for the wo railway companies, and when the Justice refused to adjourn the hearing, left the courtroom.

On the conclusion of Mr. Jackson's argument, decision was reserved.

The order applied for by the Attorney-General asked among other things that the defendant corporations and all persons claiming to act for it, "and all other persons" be restrained and enjoined from exercising any of the corporate powers of the defendant companies. This was taken to mean that should Justice Beabury grant the order applied for the receivers appointed by the United States Courts would be enjoined from discharging the duties there imposed upon them.

Policy Everything, the Man Nothing. "I am striving to accomplish what I can in such matters as these be ause. The welfare of the natural imperiously demands the action I am taking. It is action in the interest of all the people, and the need for it will be as great long after I have passed out of public life as it is now. On these great points that I have mentioned, as on others I could mention, from the standpoint of the nation the policy is everything, while it is of little importance who carries it out, so long as it actually is carried out. "Therefore, I hope you will see to it, according to your best endeavor, that the policy is accepted as permanent, as something to be persevered in because of the linterest of the whole people and without regard to any possible political changes." PAID $965,000 TO A. N. BRADY FOR PAPER RAILROAD

Ryan Financiers Sowed Nothing for Construction, Reaped Million-Dollar Harvest---Court's Order Made Laying of Line Impossible.

Another angle in the amazing and bewildering financial path of the "I have received verbal orders from Metropolitan Street Railway Company has been revealed by an item in the books discovered by Marvyn Scudder, expert accountant for the Pubone removes anything or interferes in lic Service Commission, showing the purchase by the Metropolitan from receivers appointed by the United Anhony N. Brady of the "Fulton, Wall and Cortlandt Street Ferries Company" for $965,607.19.

The railway line that figured in the transfer from the Metropolitan to Mr. Brady does not exist. It does not own a foot of track or a single be's private chamber, and at which street car. Not only that, but the Supreme Court granted an injuncthe Judge, Arthur H. Masten, the countion in 1895, ten years after the corporation was organized, restraining it from building a street railway over the route it had mapped out.

' It is in the province of Mr. Ivins, special counsel for the Public Ser-Mr. Joline nor Mr. Masten vice Commission, to bring out the inside facts of this deal, whereby Anthony would discuss what had transpired N. Brady secured nearly a million dollars for a street railway company that When Judge Lecembe was seen later by uncovering the channel through which the money was paid.

"Wall and Cortlandt Street Ferries Railway Co.," as follows: Anthony N. retary: Hogh J. Grant, treasurer, and Samuel A. Beardsley, W. S. Weaver, Charles Farrel, F. W. Olcott and Nicholas F. Brady, directors. The Brady incorporation authorized a capitalization of $1,000,000, all water but sixteen shares set forth as having been issued for actual cash. The ear marks forth that the Fulton Street Railroad Company, which is a much better situated crosstown line, was operated for the year ending June 30, 1906, at a deficit of $19.246.72, according to Thomas F. Ryan's close figures in their reports to the State Rallroad Commission.
